

I Excel in Construction & Woodworking

First of all, I excel in construction for a few reasons. The first reason is because I have always loved to watch my grandpa in his work shop over the summers since I have been really little. I would watch him work, and me and my grandma would paint it. The next reason is because, I used to ride along with my dad over the summers when he built barns. I loved going and working alongside him. I love construction and building things with my hands, because you get to be yourself, and create incredible things. These are a few of the reasons why I believe I excel in construction and woodworking, and why I love doing it!
